

Dear Faculty and Staff,

Across the University of North Carolina System, we're united in our mission to empower students, drive innovation, and enrich the communities around us. To do so, we must be transparent and accountable in how we operate.

That's why I'm excited about the launch of our new System-wide employee engagement survey.

We need to hear from you. We need your honest feedback about what is working. What can we do to empower you in your job and be more efficient in our work? What can we do to better serve you, as you serve our students and our state?

This survey is confidential. Your response will not be linked to your name. I hope you will be blunt in telling us your views.

You'll receive an email with more information on the survey and your personal link to access it. I have challenged each of the Chancellors to exceed 50 percent participation at their institution and we need your help to meet that goal.

You are one of the thousands of UNC employees who get up every morning, come to work for the public good, help educate our students and move North Carolina forward. Your work is what allows the UNC System to be an engine of opportunity and prosperity for our state, and this is our chance to hear from you about what we can do better.

Thanks for sharing your voice through this survey and for your enduring commitment to public higher education.

Sincerely,

Margaret Spellings
President
